The 18th century was a wealth of knowledge, exploration and rapidly growing technology and expanding record-keeping made possible by advances in the printing press. In its determination to preserve the century of revolution, Gale initiated a revolution of its own: digitization of epic proportions to preserve these invaluable works in the largest archive of its kind. Now for the first time these high-quality digital copies of original 18th century manuscripts are available in print, making them highly accessible to libraries, undergraduate students, and independent scholars. The Age of Enlightenment profoundly enriched religious and philosophical understanding and continues to influence present-day thinking. Works collected here include masterpieces by David Hume, Immanuel Kant, and Jean-Jacques Rousseau, as well as religious sermons and moral debates on the issues of the day, such as the slave trade. The Age of Reason saw conflict between Protestantism and Catholicism transformed into one between faith and logic -- a debate that continues in the twenty-first century. ++++ The below data was compiled from various identification fields in the bibliographic record of this title. Excerpt from The Christian Home: A Sermon Occasioned by the Death of Mrs. M. G. Kittredge, Preached in the Eliot Church, Boston Highlands, April 22, 1883 Then Jesus turned. And saw them following, and saith unto them, What see ye? They said unto him, Rabbi, (which is to say, being interpreted, Master,) where dwellest thou? Fife saith unto them, Come and see. They came and saw where he dwelt, and abode with him that day; for it was about the tenth hour.-John I 38, 39. Excerpt from A Sermon Occasioned by the Death of Miss. Sarah Jane Fuller, Daughter of Mr. Moses Fuller, of Franklin: Preached in West Medway, January 23, 1859 The cup of which Christ here speaks, is the sufferings to which God the Father called him, in the sacrifice which he was about to make for a dying world. Judas had betrayed him to his enemies. A band of men and officers from the chief priests and Pharisees, with torches and lanterns, were now searching for him. And when Simon Peter saw their determination to lay hands upon his master, he drew his sword and cut off the right ear of the high-priest's servant. Then said Jesus unto Peter, Put up thy sword into the sheath: the cup which my Father hath given me, shall I not drink it?
