Sexual abuse is one of major problems faced by adolescent girls and boys equally. These problems mostly go unnoticed as the victim suffers in silence because of fear and social stigma. This indirectly affects the physical health, mental health and the academic performance [ 25 ].

Meeting girls from Mumbai's slums whose lives have been touched by Vacha, the women's resource centre started by veteran feminist Sonal Shukla and her team, it's impossible not to come away smiling. No wonder, at the end of over two decades of working among pre-teen and adolescent girls, Shukla feels exhausted but optimistic.
