Magnolia Pictures said on Monday it has acquired rights to distribute Swedish science fiction thriller "Aniara" after the film's world premiere at the 2018 Toronto International Film Festival. "Aniara" was adapted by directors Pella Kågerman and Hugo Lilja from an epic poem by Swedish Nobel Prize winner Harry Martinson.

Aniara: A Revue of Man In Time and Space was published in 1956 by Swedish author and Nobel Prize winner Harry Martinson. It is a 157-page epic science fiction poem, about a large space craft meant to transport humans from a dying, war-ravaged Earth to a new colony on Mars,...

The movie is based on an epic science-fiction poem. Written and directed by Pella Kagerman and Hugo Lilja, Aniara is their first feature film. Based on an epic 1956 science fiction poem by Harry Martinson, Kagerman shared the poem with his grandmother while she was in a hospital recovering from a stroke.

Aniara (Swedish: Aniara : en revy om människan i tid och rum]) is a poem of science fiction written by Swedish Nobel laureate Harry Martinson in 1956. It was selected as the second most important book published in Sweden in the 20th century.

Martinson's epic poem is composed of separate episodes which form distinct and richly resonant threads in a tapestry of voices, each clearly and palpably real. The language has a range similar to that of the composer, Mahler, delving fearlessly into the plain, the sparse, even the tacky,...

Aniara is the story of a luxurious space ship, loaded with 8,000 evacuees, fleeing an Earth made uninhabitable by Man's technological arrogance. A malfunction knocks the craft off course, taking these would-be Mars colonists on an irreversible journey into deep space. Aniara is a book of prophecy, a panoramic view of humanity's possible fate.
