SCLWKU - RAY SWANSON

In accounting terms, these journal entries are termed as closing entries. The main purpose of these closing entries is to bring the temporary journal account balances to zero for the next accounting period, which keeps the accounts reconciled. As similar to all other journal entries, closing entries are posted in the general ledger.

A closing entry is a journal entry that is made at the end of an accounting period to transfer balances from a temporary account to a permanent account. Companies use closing entries to reset the balances of temporary accounts – accounts that show balances over a single accounting period – to zero.
