Here he writes of the eastern Congo, a region being destroyed by an entrenched war the scale of which exceeds any previous conflict by any measure. The book's chapters are each like their own essay on the various topics such as mining, armies, individual locations, the effects of war on people, the rape epidemic, the minerals themselves, reform proposals and others.

The author talks about Sudanese conflict that has nothing in common with war/occupation of the D.R.Congo by his neighbors. The author does his best to clean Rwandan, Ugandan and Burundian armies as well as corporations involved in looting, killings and occupation taking place in the D.R.Congo.

Consuming the Congo: War and Conflict Minerals in the World's Deadliest Place by. Peter Eichstaedt (Goodreads Author) 3.41 · Rating details · 76 ratings · 17 reviews Every time you use a cell phone or log on to a computer, you could be contributing to the death toll in the bloodiest, most violent region in the world: the eastern Congo.

In Consuming the Congo, veteran journalist and author Peter Eichstaedt goes into these killing fields to find what is behind the bloodshed, hearing the stories of those who live this nightmarish reality. He talks with survivors of villages decimated by war and miners slogging knee-deep in muck, ...
