MANG6178 Contemporary Issues and debates in Human Resource Management Module Overview This module aims to give a broad overview and knowledge of some of the contemporary issues that exist within an HRM context across a global workplace.

Systems approach to management tries to address issues facing an organization by assessing the overall coordination of the parts that make up that organization. Thus it will try to approach an organization by analyzing the relationship between various departments like human resources, finance , marketing, and the overall contribution of each to organizational success.

This module will explore more advanced management and organizational theory to facilitate students' examination of contemporary management challenges. As well as considering these challenges from a mainstream managerial perspective, the module will also draw on the perspective of critical management studies as a means of providing an alternative viewpoint on contemporary management issues.
