Our MSc Corporate Governance and Business Ethics addresses both these sets of issues. It studies the complex and changing relationships between business corporations, their stakeholders (shareholders, employees, customers, suppliers, etc) and the societies in which they operate.

Thematically, the main difference between corporate governance and ethics is that the ethics are the philosophical and morally decent standards that a corporation attempts to stand by, while governance processes are the means by which a corporation attempts to remain as ethical as possible while still making a profit.

Corporate governance is the internal framework that a company designs and implements to govern and protect those invested into the company. The relationship between ethics and governance comes from an organization's owner or executive managers, who create the governance and decide which ethical principles employees will follow.
