"Epic Negation examines the dialectical turn of modernist poetry over the interwar period, arguing that late modernism inverts the method of Ezra Pound's "poem including history" to conceive a negated mode of epic, predicated on the encryption of disarticulated historical content. Compelled to register the force of a totality it cannot represent, this negated epic reorients the function of poetic language and reference, remaking the poem, and late modernism generally, as a critical instrument of dialectical reason. Part I reads The Waste Land alongside the review it prefaced, The Criterion, arguing that the poem establishes the editorial method with which T. S. Eliot constructs the review's totalizing account of culture. Dividing the epic's critical function from its style, Eliot not only includes history differently, but also formulates an intricately dialectical account of the interwar crisis of bourgeois culture, formed in the image of a Marxian critique it opposes. Part II turns to the second war's onset, tracing the dislocated formal effects of an epic gone underground. In the elegies and pastoals of W. H. Auden and Louis MacNeice, lyric forms divulge the determining force of unmentionable but universal events, dividing experience against consciousness. With H.D.'s war trilogy, produced in a terse exchange with Freud's Moses, even the poetic image lapses, associating epic with the silent historical force of the unconscious as such"-- „Die Liebe ist es, die uns erst zu Menschen macht. Sie ist die größte Emotion, die auf dieser Welt existiert.“ Für Isabella Castelli steht im Leben ganz klar ihr Job an erster Stelle. Als sie einen Chefposten bei einer renommierten Zeitung in Verona bekommt, ist sie überglücklich, aus dem versch-lafenen Örtchen Oriago di Mira herauszukommen und auf der Karriereleiter nach oben zu klettern. Zum Job gehört natürlich ein eigener Assistent, aber muss es ausgerechnet ein Mann sein? Darüber hinaus schafft es Francesco, sie mit seinen grün-blauen Augen durcheinander zu bringen und das, obwohl er gar nicht ihr Typ ist. Dennoch übt er mit seiner charmanten Art auf Isabella eine unwiderstehliche Anziehungskraft aus und langsam öffnet sie ihm Stück für Stück ihr Herz. Doch Glück ist, wie Isabella selbst weiß, selten von Dauer und schon bald geraten nicht nur ihre Träume, sondern auch ihre frische Beziehung in Gefahr. Hatte ihre Liebe überhaupt jemals eine Chance oder laufen sie auf ein Ende zu, das Shakespeare alle Ehre macht?

The focus of this volume is on the aesthetics, semantics and function of materials in Roman antiquity between the 2nd century B.C. and the 2nd century A.D. It includes contributions on both architectural spaces (and their material design) and objects - types of 'artefacts' that differ greatly in the way they were used, perceived and loaded with cultural significance. With respect to architecture, the analysis of material aesthetics leads to a new understanding of the performance, imitation and transformation of surfaces, including the social meaning of such strategies. In the case of objects, surface treatments are equally important. However, object form (a specific design category), which can enter into tension with materiality, comes into particular focus. Only when materials are shaped do their various qualities emerge, and these qualities are, to a greater or lesser extent, transferred to objects. With a focus primarily on Roman Italy, the papers in this volume underscore the importance of material design and highlight the awareness of this matter in the ancient world.
