For coaching to be effective, at the first session, it is important that this session is led by the coach and is used for the coach to set the scene and :

- Agree with the coachee explicitly on how the coaching will be delivered, the expectations for both parties (a brief discussion should suffice), an understanding of what the coachee wants to achieve from coaching (long, medium, short term goals, priority areas)
- ensure that any administrative processes are clear and answering any ...

Qualities of an Effective Coach Introduction A coach pertains to a person that participates in the guidance and management of the activities of the organization and its people. The responsibilities of coaches differ depending on the type and structure of organization where they are working (Sabock, 2004). Quite naturally,

In a study of 30 internal coach/client pairs, Baron and Morin (2012) found that the coaching relationship, as measured by clients' ratings of the Working Alliance Inventory (Horvath & Greenberg, 1986), a commonly used measure of coaching relationship, predicted the coaching outcome of client self-efficacy.
