Self-analysis essays force you to think critically and honestly about yourself and your work. These essays are often assigned at the college level as a way to reflect on yourself and your progress as a writer. They're also used after group projects to gauge your personal contributions. Although they may sound ...

A rhetorical essay is something you don't see very often. Unlike research paper and a cognitive essay, a typical example of a rhetorical analysis essay focuses on analyzing how a text is written rather than the meaning behind it. This confuses many young students who are taught to pay special attention to every element in a given text.

A self-reflective essay is a brief paper where you describe an experience and how it has changed you or helped you to grow. Self-reflective essays often require students to reflect on their academic growth from specific projects or assignments, though others might require you to think about the impact of a specific event in your life.

Upon close inspection of the Personal Essay Examples we have on the site, you may notice that there are no significant differences between these and a reflective essay. One main difference would simply be that a personal essay need not be a reflection of the author on their experiences but may be about anything.
