In Islam, freedom of expression is restrained only where the failure to do so would result in harming the cause of truth. According to many Muslim scholars, the primary offence which justifies such a curtailment of free expression is blasphemy. However, as the discussion below will demonstrate, even this type of speech is not curtailed in Islam.

It has pitched the right to freedom of expression - including viewing cartoons of the Prophet Muhammad - against what that means for Muslims who regard such actions as blasphemous. The motivation for the triple murders in Nice by a knifeman shouting "Allah Akbar" and why someone else threatened people with a handgun close to the city of Avignon is not yet known.
