The very best legends, the ones that get passed down across the centuries, do all three. And many of these creepy legends are actually based on true events. They grew out of experiences that so startled or frightened our ancestors that they couldn't help but embellish the story over the years until it finally transformed into legend.

The question remains, are those myths and legends stories something that existed in the minds of our ancestors, or were they based on true events? It is true that most of those ancient myths and legends stories appear to the scientific world as fictitious products of vivid imaginations whose goals were purely to explain phenomena beyond their comprehension.
