Gertrude reveals no guilt in her marriage with Claudius after the recent murder of her husband, and Hamlet begins to show signs of jealousy towards Claudius. According to Hamlet, she scarcely mourned her husband's death before marrying Claudius. Her name may derive from Gertrude of Bavaria, who was Queen of Denmark in the late 12th century.

At forty-seven, Gertrude is seduced into a passionate affair by the King's brother, Feng/Claudius, who has loved her devotedly for many years. The King discovers the affair and confronts Claudius. Claudius, threatened with estrangement from Gertrude, conspires with Corambus/Polonius to murder the King. He and Gertrude marry.

He imagined and created the complex (?) relationship between Gertrude and Claudius before the climax of the events that consist Shakespeare's masterpiece. One could say that this is an attempt of a prequel to "Hamlet" and as such it has the quality of the majority of prequels and sequels in Literature and in Cinema. It falls frightfully short.
