Los Angeles Times "If Freud or Jung had set out to write a psychological thriller, I doubt that either one could have come up with a yarn as taut and telling as Lying on the Couch, a dazzling psychiatric whodunit by one of the leading theorists and practitioners of psychotherapy in our own times...

This novel features a lot of lying (in more than one sense) on or next to a couch, for most of it is set in a California where psychoanalysts, lawyers, and gamblers abound. When ambitious young analyst Ernest Lash counsels Justin Astrid to leave his wife, Carol, a hotshot attorney, she and two colleagues dream up getting back at both men by having Carol become one of Ernest's patients in order to sabotage him.

Lying on the Couch - Endorsements — Irvin D. Yalom, MD

From the highly respected psychotherapist and best-selling author of Love's Executioner and When Nietzsche Wept comes this long-awaited second novel, an ingenious blending of psychological insight and fictional invention. It is the "twilight of the shrinks" disciples of Freud and Jung sandbag against the rising tide of new age therapies and wring their hands over the unreliable narratives of patients who "lie" on the couch.

They literally "lie on the couch," and both Lash and Streider are shown to be extremely vulnerable to the dishonest communications of their patients, despite extensive training and understanding, a risk in all therapy. Lying on the Couch is a satiric novel, exposing many of the foibles of psychoanalysis and existential psychotherapy. It is also about ethics - the so-called slippery slope of boundary violations as therapists are tempted to violate codes of behavior.
