This is an unrealistic time frame for mobile games because it would be nearly impossible to even break even, let alone make a profit. Most mobile games only cost the consumer $.99-$5.00 on average. That means if you sell your game at $2 you have to sell 50,000 copies if you want to break even on a game with a $100,000 budget.

Dissecting Success. I've been working at My.Com for the past 13 years. This is a very big company comprised of more than 10 different studios making mostly mobile games.
