The AS-30 was an air-to-ground missile built by Nord Aviation. It was a precision attack weapon designed to be used against high-value targets such as bridges and bunkers. The AS-30 was essentially a larger version of the earlier AS-20 design, and initially used that weapon's guidance system, which required pilots to track the weapon visually and correct its path using a small joystick, while also flying their own aircraft. All such MCLOS systems proved very difficult to use in practice. The upd

06/18/2014 04:19 pm ET Updated Dec 06, 2017. It's officially the new quarter-life crisis. Whether you think you have it "figured out" or not, what I've begun to realize is that the truth is that by 30, no one has anything figured out. I just hit the milestone in April. I am not married (nor do I ever want to be), I have neither a companion in my life nor children (I don't want any of that either), and I'm still very happy with being the quintessential millennial — a ...
