the reasonable expectation that the promise will be kept. As such, promissory estoppel corresponds with the objectively justified belief/ anticipation of fair dealing, or the 'reasonable expectations of honest men' This is because under the doctrine of promissory estoppel, a party can rely on a promise made by another party that is unsupported by consideration, when certain conditions are met.

LORD JUSTICE STEYN said a theme that ran through the law of contract was that the reasonable expectations of honest men must be protected. It was not a rule or principle of law.

"good faith and fair dealing duties, based on the reasonable expectations of the parties, might advance the interests of justice. Moreover, recognition of good faith and 17Steyn J. Z., "Contract Law: Fulfilling the Reasonable Expectations of Honest Men" (1997) 113 Law Quarterly Review 433, p.438 18Ibid, p.433

This article aims to define the doctrine that "reasonable expectation" ("RE") of an honest man must be protected and explore its necessity in the common law countries. This article would include a comparative critical analysis on whether existing common law mechanisms are self-sufficient to protect the policyholders' rights who are in a less advantageous position in an insurance contract.
