"There, there," you might comfort a drooping pilea. It's totally normal to speak to plants, and now there's finally a way to hear them talk back to you. Well, sort of. PlantWave, currently available on Kickstarter for $220, is a device that detects electrical variations in plants, then turns those variations into pitches. Essentially, it translates the changes it discovers over time into what could be loosely defined as music.

The PlantWave Device Allows You to Hear Your Plants Sing

When you sing or talk to your plant you are expelling carbon dioxide which the plant needs to absorb to allow it to go through the process of photosynthesis and grow. In turn, the plant releases oxygen back to you, which is both beneficial and important for your health.
