The reason to do online learning, at least for a part of your education is that it's much cheaper than attending a college or school fulltime so you can hold down a job while studying from home for at least part of your degree thus avoiding the hassles of attending classes live unless you're young and curious and want the social college-school experience. Some of the benefits of distance education are: Convenience, go at your own pace. Stay home. Available anywhere over the internet. Prices are cheaper for online courses than traditional college courses. Some distance-education programs have an in-class component, particularly ones with labwork or internships. You need basic computer skills. There is teacher interaction over the internet but no face-to-face interaction. There is no social life, no friends, no classmates.

It is impossible not to have a social curriculum in your classroom and school. We cannot not communicate and are therefore constantly sending social messages about each other and life. We are thus "teaching" a social curriculum every second by our very presence. The Essential Social Curriculum helps you understand, create, and powerfully communicate a social curriculum driven by values. To teach in the social curriculum with love, consciousness, and clarity is the foundation of The Essential Social Curriculum. Schools using The Essential Social Curriculum have produced inspiring climate and culture where students want to socially and academically improve. Whether in the classroom or school wide, TESC builds an inner drive to excel as a person and a learner. Based in classic psychology, neurology, behavioral sciences, and academic research, TESC brings clarity, confidence, joy, and peace to school staff and students alike. Parents and visitors to the school quickly feel its presence communicated through the climate and culture. The reader is guided through The Essential Questions that underlie social interaction. Questions such as " Do I exist?," " Do I make a difference good or bad?," and " Can I trust myself?" among others. How these questions manifest in students and staff are illuminated with numerous stories. Once you know the questions, you are guided in ways to answer those questions with precision, congruity, and intention. Students instantly recognize when you are understanding and answering their Essential Questions and instantly respond with positive answers to your Essential Questions as well. Students will help you be the best teacher possible as you provide them wonderful answers to their Essential Questions. Along with the above, you are guided in how to create a Value Driven Classroom. When you drive values as the primary climate and culture of the classroom and school, order manifests. If you drive behavior and order, it becomes harder and harder to see and experience positive values in everyone involved. Being a congruent model of the values you want within your climate and culture, how to make those values the center of all class process, and how to deal with violations of values are given special emphasis. While many social problems are eliminated and reduced by answering the Essential Questions and creating a Value Driven Classroom, a remarkably simple and specific intervention is given for direct violations of the values such that everyone's Essential Questions are affirmed and love again prevails in the climate and culture. From preschool to High School, from self contained classrooms to alternative schools, The Essential Social Curriculum applies to all and helps joy and peace reign in schools.

Chances are you will go to a college near where you live or go to one online. Many people now do parts of their degrees online then attend the college physically for awhile. In-state is always cheaper than going to a college out of state because your local government subsidizes residents at the local public universities, not the private ones. Private universities charge whatever they want to everybody. Publicly-funded ones are much cheaper. The real issue is what do you study. Do you listen to what everybody else says including the world system or yourself? That's the eternal question. Will I be the hero of my own life or will I be a clone, following everybody else? College is not necessarily the answer to life. You are. Whatever lives inside of you is strong, unique and vital. College can help you find it but by itself college is a fantasy land for young people.

A groundswell of interest has led to significant advances in understanding and using Culturally Responsive Arts Education to promote social justice and education. This landmark volume provides a theoretical orientation to these endeavors. Examining a range of efforts across different forms of art, various educational settings, and diverse contexts, it foregrounds the assets of imagination, creativity, resilience, critique and cultural knowledge, working against prevailing understandings of marginalized groups as having deficits of knowledge, skills, or culture. Emphasizing the arts as a way to make something possible, it explores and illustrates the elements of social justice arts education as "a way out of no way" imposed by dominance and ideology. A set of powerful demonstrations shows how this work looks in action. Introductions to the book as a whole and to each section focus on how to use the chapters pedagogically. The conclusion pulls back the chapters into theoretical and pedagogical context and suggests what needs done to be done practically, empirically, and theoretically, for the field to continue to develop.
