The Back-Up Plan is the eighteenth episode of Glee's fifth season and the one hundred and sixth episode overall. The episode aired on April 29, 2014. Rachel is presented with a unique opportunity and takes a risk that could either take her career to the next level or kill it entirely.

"The Back-up Plan" was supposed to be a romantic comedy; unfortunately it is a cheesy, unfunny and non-romantic comedy. The idea of "falling in love", "getting married" and "having a baby" not necessarily in this order" could have worked with a better screenplay.
