Who are the top one percent by income? $531,020 is the cutoff for a top 1% household income in the United States in 2020. For a single earner, the cutoff is $361,020. The top 1% household income is not the final word, so pick your favorite. Households might have multiple people working - it is often more appropriate to break down the 1% for individual workers.

The Top One Percent Society (TOPS) was founded in July 1989 by Ronald K. Hoeflin, Ph.D. TOPS is a high IQ society, at the 99th percentile of intelligence, dedicated to the intellectual stimulation and growth of its members. To this effect a journal (Termite) to which any member can submit letters, essays, poems or art, has been set in place. Membership requires minimum qualifying scores in a variety of tests.

School teachers don't earn enough to make the top 1 percent on their own, but many live in 1-percent households, primarily through marriage. Note: The chart counts the number of individual workers living in households with an overall income in the top 1 percent nationwide.
