The scientific method is a series of steps followed by scientific investigators to answer specific questions about the natural world. It involves making observations, formulating a hypothesis, and conducting scientific experiments. Scientific inquiry starts with an observation followed by the formulation of a question about what has been observed.

The Scientific Method The scientific method has been used for centuries to create a structured and concrete way to study a question. When looking at it from a psychology standpoint, the scientific method allows psychologists to formulate a way to study and make sense of human nature and support their "haunches and plausible sounding theories" (Myers, 2010).
