Unfair Competition Law European Union and Member States

The source of laws governing competition for the EU is embodied in the Treaty on European Union, as amended by the Treaty of Amsterdam, signed on Oct. 2, 1997. Article 81 of the treaty governs agreements between, or practices of, two or more parties acting together that have as their object or effect the restriction of competition in the EU.

The law of unfair competition finds its origin in the Paris Union Convention (1883) on the protection of industrial property, in Article 10bis inserted during the Washington Conference in 1900 as amended in The Hague on 1925.

Unfair competition law is traditionally considered part of intellectual property law. Not only the relation of unfair competition law to intellectual property laws are therefore part of the discussion but also the areas of consumer protection law (since unfair competition law is partly orientated towards consumer protection) and competition (as an economic concept) is the topic of thorough review.

European antitrust policy is developed from two central rules set out in the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union: First, Article 101 of the Treaty prohibits agreements between two or more independent market operators which restrict competition. This provision covers both horizontal agreements (between actual or potential competitors operating at the same level of the supply chain) and vertical agreements (between firms operating at different levels, i.e. agreement between a ...

Examples of unfair business practices include untruthful information to consumers or aggressive marketing techniques to influence their choices. Updated guidance. In May 2016, the Commission presented an updated version of the 2009 Guidance document on the application of the unfair commercial practices directive ('the UCPD').
